The biggest reason people buy lake shore property is for the country atmosphere and the scenery. Some people extend their docks by having a diving platform that is anchored in the spring and left all summer and pulled out in the fall. Diving platforms are hardly ever used and are boating hazards, especially during the night. A new and better trend is to take a boat or pontoon out into deeper water and dive from it, making the boat or pontoon a temporary diving platform. Most lakes in Wisconsin are public property. Why allow people to clutter up the lake with diving platforms when they could use their boat or pontoon to satisfy their needs?

Do you favor making it illegal to have diving platforms in Wisconsin inland lakes?
